ABSTRACT

In current paper, we observe the trends in how and to what extent the Russian-Ukrainian war has influenced Ukrainian universities in introducing and consolidating the principles of academic integrity. To conduct the research, a literature survey was used, as well as data from internet-based surveys.

The impact of the war on higher education in Ukraine is huge - high-quality e-learning has become the key to the sustainability of universities, and in some ways the only way to retain students and continue their studies. At the same time, Ukraine's efforts to integrate with the European Union force them to carry out reforms based on a wide spectrum of activities. This includes dealing with academic integrity.
