Editorial

We publish the second issue of the International Journal of Information Studies with the below described research pieces. In the first paper on "Intelligent Information Mode of College English Teaching Based on Multimedia Network Technology", the author Wu Xuejing has studied the impact of the network resources in English teaching. The authors has identified the issues in teaching multimedia and came up with the   structuring proper multimedia network and multimedia network technology which takes an important role in college English teaching.

Chen in the second paper on "Russian Teaching Resource Construction based on MOOC under Computer Age", has explored the advantages of the Internet for Russian Language teaching. Multimedia, Internet applications and remote education are the three issues in the Russian educators teaching as identified by the authors.

Zhu and· Li in the paper on "Construction of Financial Auditing Teaching Mode Based on Artificial Intelligence Expert System" described the basic architecture, research focus and development trend of the artificial intelligence teaching system based on expert system. This paper has focussed the current research on artificial intelligence, and its application in the field of education as a case to explain the author's point of view.

The papers are thus examine different sub-domains and addressed the important issues.

Editors