

Editorial

We bring the third issue of the International Journal of Information Studies with the publication of the following papers.

In the first paper on 'Challenges in Manpower Building and Re-Engineering of Academic Libraries in Tamil Nadu: A Scholastic View', the authors have discussed the important role to be played by the library personnel's in academic libraries in disseminating information. They have described how the manpower is contributing for the information activities.

In the second paper on 'Methodological E-learning and E-teaching Techniques' the authors viewed that the development of information communication Technology, internet and mobile communication, introduction of computers into school and daily use of computers by people of different vocation has made education as very significant. Further they have discussed new technology techniques and methods like video streaming, and the new way of integration of the computers in education.

In the next paper on 'Digital Preservation in Archives with Reference to National Archives of India' the author PrasanthaKumari has discussed some aspects of digital preservation and digital preservation in National Archives of India. She has considered the Climate controlled storage facility, trained staff, timely checking of different types of Digital Medias, change of software or hardware whenever needed, regular power supply, and regular users' orientation.

In the next paper on 'Awareness and use of E-journals by the Faulty members of Annamalai University: A Study' the author has described the objectives, scopes, and methodology of the study of the e-journals. The paper has suggested with some suitable suggestion for the further improvement of the system.

In the next paper on 'Copy Right (Amendment) Act 2012 with Respect to Digitalization of Library' have discussed and explained the law and its features and implications of the copyright act 1957 and its amendments later.

In the last paper on 'Use of Social Networks in Academic Libraries', the authors described the social networks and their role in academic libraries. Further they have detailed the past history, services and advantages of modifying a library into a modern social networking platform based Academic Libraries.

We hope these papers are important in the study of information studies domain.

Editors