Editorial

In the last couple of year, the growth in the information production is voluminous and newer tools are produced to organize and manage such information. Researchers have been working on creating platforms, interfaces, tools, models and working on them to organize in effective manner.

In order to create an ideal platform for information organization, we have initiated efforts. One such effort is the publication of this journal, Journal of Information Organization. It is aimed as a quarterly issue which will publish original research, reviews, surveys and book reviews. We solicit original and novel papers that address innovative techniques on information organization.

. Hope this first issue provide some insights on the ongoing research on information organization. We are confident that this journal, Journal of Information Organization will record research progress through the publication of eminent research papers.
